Lore is a computer software company specializing in developing tools for financial support to corporate treasurers. Lore is based out of France and the organization behind Lore-Finance, a financial risk management web application that allows users to access the market-related data and manage their own debt and investment portfolios. The Lore platform is designed to optimize the management of their clients' financial assets, improving overall business performance.

BIRT is used within the Lore-Finance framework to deliver the solution's existing reports to its external clients who are corporate treasurers. The company likes that BIRT is user friendly, with a strong community and multi-format capabilities.
