Task-focused interfaces help make users more productive by organizing their digital work around tasks and showing them only the relevant information for each task. These interfaces reduce the need to repeatedly search and scroll to find information, while minimizing the impact of interruptions because information relevant to each task can be instantly recalled. Tasktop Technologies Inc. offers developers task-focused support for activities such as Web browsing and working with documents, emails and calendars.

Tasktop's biggest new feature, found in Tasktop 1.4, is time synchronization. In addition, Tasktop 1.4 offers BIRT-based reports, and users now have the ability to adjust all their timings before synchronizing them with the task repository, ensuring that all of their activity is always accounted for.
